

This course studies the mathematical elements of computer science including propositional logic, predicate logic, sets, functions and relations, proofs technique, mathematical induction, algorithms, recursion, complexity of algorithms, introduction to graph theory.