

This course aims to introduce students to fundamental concepts of object oriented programming with Java, gives an introduction to event driven programming and graphical user interface, exception handling, files manipulation and recursion. The topics covered in this course provide a foundation for more advanced courses in Computer Science and Information Systems.