

The course aims at introducing students to the scientific description and analysis of the English sound system as well as sound articulation and manner of articulation, sound functions and sound sequences. In addition, the course will focus on practical training in producing sounds, words, and sentences in connection with their phonetic transcription.