

Course Description

0101216 International Relations in Islam & Rules of Al-Jihad

This Course is a mandatory course for section of jurisprudence students, dealing with the definition of international relations in the public international law at the Muslim jurists, and the historical development of international relations, international relations under the war, and the provisions destined for the hostilities, and the system imposed on the Mujahedeen, and international treaties and how to end the war and its impact on people and property.